Develop and enhance your writing skills and maximise the impact of your work

4-29 June 2018

The British Council in Greece, Kingston Writing School and Kingston University, are pleased to announce the courses that comprise our sixth annual International Creative Writing Summer School in Athens and Thessaloniki.

The Summer School provides opportunities for writers from across the world to develop their critical and analytical skills, enhance their writing abilities, and work intensely in an inspiring and creative environment with experienced writers associated with the Kingston Writing School and Kingston University. This year, the Summer School offers students the opportunity to enhance their writing skills through writing fiction, flash fiction and/or poetry, and to extend their knowledge of publishing, editing and writing for the web under the supervision and guidance of highly accomplished writers and academics.

Whether you are an aspiring writer embarking on your first writing project, an accomplished writer or a writer somewhere in between, the International Creative Writing School will give you the opportunity to explore and develop your expressive and imaginative potential and maximise the impact of our work. Workshops in each course are scheduled from Monday to Friday between 18.30 and 21.00. Courses are held in English and may be taken separately or in combination.

Sign up now for one or more of the courses in Athens or Thessaloniki and make this June special!
